
The Last Coach

Contributed by Asif Dange

A man was working as editor in a daily newspaper. Once he was traveling to Bombay to deliver a speech about railway department improvements. His coach was the last coach in the train. The train was moving very fast and so the coach was jerking heavily. So he was unable to prepare for the speech. Annoyed by the event, next day in the meeting, his first point towards improvement of railway department was ""There should not be last coach in any train.""
