RUN AWAY

Contributed by Asif Dange

Sorrow leaves me cold and torn,
Staring at pale Winter's sky;
Forgotten love a whisper's scorn,
These wounds I've failed to hide.

Such broken legacies remain,
From disconcerted lullabies;
Gray paintings all left in disdain,
On this somber winter's night.

Your golden eyes have saved me,
From all that once was I,
Now only you can break me,
If this heart be what you deny.

I feel the warmth your lips do bring
The sirens too did sway;
Take flight with angelic wings,
Neither truth nor lie can stay.

These scars of my obsession,
Bleed and burn with decay;
E1ndless winter beholds this sin,
For lovers are but runaways
